HERE'S THE RESULT IN ONE BOOKLOVERS' CONTEST GAME!

You'll Be Surprised to See How Many Answers the Prize-Winners Submitted.

The Booklovers' Contest Editor is in receipt of the results of a Booklovers' Contest just completed on a large Eastern newspaper. Of course the pictures were different from those now appearing in this contest. The rules were slightly different also, but the contests were dissimilar in minor points only. Vitally, fundamentally, the contests are the same. Therefore this compilation of the results achieved by the prize-winners of that other contest is of intense interest to players of this contest game:

Cor. rect.

1st prize-winner submitted..... 728 74

2nd prize-winner submitted..... 741 72

3rd prize-winner submitted..... 662 72

4th prize-winner submitted..... 752 72

5th prize-winner submitted..... 694 71

6th prize-winner submitted..... 762 70

7th prize-winner submitted..... 487 68

8th prize-winner submitted..... 612 68

9th prize-winner submitted..... 508 67

10th prize-winner submitted..... 171 66

It seems to the Contest Editor that these results show how differently we look at things. Botanists and zoologists talk about the diversity of nature—how every leaf is different from every other leaf, every person different from every other person, every worm different from every other worm.

Well, results of Booklovers' Contests seem to show that every point of view is different from every other point of view, every person's way of looking at a picture different from every other person's way of looking at that picture.

If only one answer were allowed to each picture, you see that luck or chance might play a big part in the contest, for no one could submit the total result of his ingenuity if the number of answers he could submit to each picture was limited to one. But as it is, the rules allow as many as ten answers to each picture, and one of 710 answers to the seventy-seven pictures.

This permits each contestant to exercise his ingenuity to the fullest. It permits a contestant to submit all the possibly correct answers he has found for each picture—just so not more than ten different answers are submitted to each picture.

If you secure an Answer Book you need only one copy of each picture, and you can make as many as ten different answers to each picture. If you do not use an Answer Book you must, of course, submit each answer on a separate picture and coupon.

Thus the Answer Book saves you time, labor and money. It is much easier—and cheaper—to secure only one copy of each picture, paste each one on its proper page, and beneath each one write down the answers you wish to submit to it, than to secure a stack of pictures and coupons, tie or paste them together at the tops, and write on the coupon beneath each picture the title you think it represents.

If you make six answers to picture No. 55, for instance, and do not have an Answer Book, you must get six copies of picture No. 55 and write each answer on a separate picture and coupon. If you have an Answer Book, you get only one copy of picture No. 55, paste it on page 55 of the Answer Book, and beneath where the picture is pasted you write down your six answers to it.

Turn to to-day's contest announcement, and look at the Answer Book order form. Do you see that you may obtain it at the price of 75 cents? And remember that the Answer Book points out the ten pictures that the ten starred titles fit!

SNELL MANSION CONCEALS BODY

House of Mystery Adds to Its Record When Workmen Unearth Bones.

Bloomington, Ill., September 25.—The mansion at Clinton, Ill., erected forty years ago by Colonel Thomas Snell, yielded another sensation today, when it was learned that the skeleton of a child in a home-made coffin had been found skulking concealed within a wall. Workmen tearing down the residence made the discovery, which adds another chapter to the story history of Colonel Snell, who died about seven years ago, and whose fortune a great fight was made in the courts of Illinois. The body of the child had been buried in a starch box, which easily opened, exposing the bones when the house wreckers found it.

The workmen threw the box with its contents into the yard, and it remained there two days before it was turned over to the police. A hurried inquest was held, an open verdict was returned, and the town supervisor in charge of the body, burying it in the cemetery.

"We have no idea as to how long it has been in the wall," said O. F. Burr, Clinton's chief of police. The box must have been concealed many years ago. Colonel Snell himself built the mansion about forty years ago, and lived in it up to the time of his death. The house has been occupied since that time by one family, though vacant almost a year.

The story of Colonel Snell's life was told in the courts at three trials when Richard Snell broke his father's will on the ground that the old man was of unsound mind.
